

Molly Wilkinson Chavers

Molly Wilkinson Chavers is the owner of Blue Mercury Consulting, LLC, focusing her work on community building and equity efforts benefitting Central Indiana. Prior to this, Molly served as Executive Director of IndyHub, an organization she co-founded in 2005. At IndyHub, she successfully raised general operating and programmatic funds to pursue the group's goals of connecting twenty and thirty something to Indy. This work has been widely recognized and regarded in the talent attraction community as key component to successful workplace attraction and retention efforts.

While at IndyHub, Molly also served as the CEO for the No Mean City/Live Indy initiative, the city's livability marketing venture. Additionally, she launched and directed the IndyHub Foundation, a supporting organization for the City of Indianapolis, CICP, Arts Council of Indianapolis, Indy Chamber and Visit Indy.

Molly has also worked in government and political sectors, serving Indiana Governors Frank O'Bannon and Joseph Kernan, as well as local and statewide Democratic candidates.

In addition to serving as a gubernatorial appointee for the Indiana Commission for Women, the Terre Haute native is a director for the Mitch Daniels Leadership Foundation, a mayoral appointee to both the Indianapolis Foundation and the Indianapolis Bicentennial Commission. Molly and her husband, Adam, are proud parents to a daughter and members of Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church.
